Teaching financial literacy to children one $tep at a time

HOW TO TALK TO YOUR KIDS ABOUT MONEY!

Who is this workshop for ...

Moms, Dads, Grandparents, close family friends. Grown ups who can impact a child's life.

Overview of class ...

What are your top two challenges in talking to your kids about money?

What do you want your kids to know about money?

Learning good money management and organizational skills sets a strong foundation for success. Financial literacy is an acquired skill. In the same way that children learn to read, to write and solve math problems, they need to learn the importance of money and how it works.

As children grow into their teens the issues around money become more compelling and learning how to manage it, is an essential life skill.

We provide the tools to allow a parent, grandparent or close family friend to coach and mentor a child to acquire these skills.

Anticipated learning outcomes ...

- You will feel more at ease talking about money with your children.
- You will have the structure to help children learn how to manage their money, spend wisely, save and avoid bad debt.
- You will learn tips, techniques and strategies that you can use right away with your children of any age to help them manage their money effectively.
- This workshop will help you foster a healthy and positive attitude around the money conversations.
